J. E. BAKER IS TIGER'S NEW EDITOR-IN-CHIEF; J. P. LITTLEJOHN HEADS BUSINESS DEPARTMENT

Other Members of Staff Are Selected; Will Take Charge of Publication Immediately

J. E. Baker, of Cades, has been selected as Editor-in-Chief of The Tiger for the ensuing year, and is to take over the duties of the retiring Editor, J. G. Adams, within the next few days. His chief and very capable assistants are to be F. E. Johnstone of Georgetown in the capacity of Associate Editor, and J. P. Littlejohn of Clemson College as Business Manager.

The other staff appointments are, as follows:

H. C. Woodson—Managing Editor
A. D. Howard—Asso. Business Manager
E. R. Kelly—Athletic Editor
O. H. Greene—Exchange Editor
W. F. Gilland—Campus Editor
J. A. Weston—Assignment Editor
C. P. Hogarth, Y. M. C. A. Editor
B. D. Cloaninger—Joke Editor
W. G. Neely—Circulation Manager
H. G. Settle—Associate Circulation Manager.

In choosing the above men, all the essential qualities and desirable attributes of a good journalist were taken into consideration. All of them were appointed on merit alone, journalistic ability, willingness to work, and general attitude being the sole qualifications upon which the selections were based.

With Baker as Editor-in-Chief The Tiger is assured of a most successful year. He has adequately demonstrated by his meritorious performance on the staff during the past year that he is fully capable of assuming the numerous responsibilities associated with his post.

Johnstone, in the office of Associate Editor, will undoubtedly make Baker a very competent assistant. He has already shown considerable writing ability in his role as a reporter during the past year and comes highly recommended by the English instructors of the faculty.

The office of Business Manager is to be taken over by J. P. Littlejohn, who, because of his residence on the campus will be in an unusually good position to obtain advertisements for The Tiger. He has served in the Editorial Department for the past year.

A. D. Howard, who was Assistant Business Manager the past year, should fit nicely into his new position, having already had a year's experience in the Business Department under the efficacious guidance of F. H. Crymes.

In the post of Managing Editor, H. C. Woodson of Albany, Georgia, is certain of being well-fitted for his duties, for he has been a member of the staff longer than any other junior and thru actual practical experience has gained all the necessary knowledge required for his work.

The editing of Sports has been turned over to E. R. Kelly of Florence, who has been Ripplemeyer's understudy for the past season. He has shown much promise along the sports-writing line and is obviously well-suited for his responsible office.

O. H. Green of Spartanburg, as Exchange Editor, W. F. Gilland of Kingstree, as Campus Editor, B. D. Cloaninger of Lykesland, as Joke Editor, and J. A. Weston of Gadsden, as Assignment Editor, are all well adapted to

CLEMSON GRADUATED SIX AT MID-SESSION

Dr. E. W. Sikes Delivered a Short Address as He Presented Diplomas to the Mid-Term Graduates

The second mid-term graduation class in the history of Clemson consisting of six men, was awarded diplomas by Pres. E. W. Sikes in chapel on Tuesday February 3.

After presenting the degrees, Doctor Sikes made a short speech in which he stressed the uselessness of a diploma unless backed by hard, efficient work. He told the class to lock their degrees in a trunk and to go to work.

Bachelor of Science degrees were awarded to the following seniors: Julian Sims Martin of Strother, S. C. Arts and Science; James Boyce Beville of Anderson, South Carolina—Electrical Engineering; Randal Archie Hayes of Anderson, South Carolina—Textile Engineering Education; Leonard Earle Jones of Dacusville, South Carolina—Engineering and Industrial Education; Richard Charles Woodruff of Greenville, South Carolina—Engineering and Industrial Education; and Clarence M. Kuykendal of Rock Hill South Carolina—Architecture.

SON OF PROF. AND MRS. HOLMES PASSES

Master Edward Pennel Is Victim of Spinal Meningitis

Professor and Mrs. A. G. Holmes have the sympathies of the corps of cadets and the people of the campus in the death of their son, Edward Pennel, who passed away early Sunday morning after a brief illness.

Young Pennel, aged 12, had been living at Clemson only a few months, since the marriage of his mother to Professor Holmes, but his fine character and cheerful disposition had won for him many devoted friends. The expression, "A fine little fellow," was often heard in reference to him.

The funeral services were conducted by the Reverend Joe Carter of Anderson, assisted by the Reverend Capers Satterlee of Clemson, and the burial was at Belton on last Monday.

their various phases of work, each having served on the staff in some capacity for one year.

The Circulation Department is to be headed by W. G. Neely of Rock Hill. H. G. Settle of Inman is to be the Associate Circulation Manager. Neely has served in this department for a year and is already familiar with the duties he is expected to assume.

The retiring staff will turn over a list of the Sophomores who have been recommended by the English Department as being capable of journalistic work. From this list, the new Editor and his staff will select the number of junior members and reporters that they will need. This selection of Sophomores will be announced in an early issue.

CLEMSON MEN ATTEND AGRICULTURAL MEET

Twenty-two Clemson Representatives at Association of Agricultural Workers in Atlanta

The Clemson Agricultural Department was represented by twenty-two instructors and extension workers at the thirty-second annual convention of the Association of Southern Agricultural Workers held in Atlanta, Georgia on February 4-6.

Arthur M. Hyde, United States Secretary of Agriculture delivered an address entitled "The General Agricultural Situation" on Wednesday. Dr. Bradford Knapp, President of the association, Carl Williams, member of the Federal Farm Board, and other noted men addressed the association. The purpose of the convention is to bring together men in the various branches of agriculture to discuss problems and exchange ideas among themselves, and with other groups. The members are grouped into sections, each with its own program. Prof. R. A. McGinty, present secretary of the Horticultural section, was elected its chairman for the next convention. The results of experiments conducted at the various agricultural colleges and experiment stations were submitted and read at the meetings of the sections.

H. W. Barre of the Clemson experiment station is a director of the association.

The following Clemson men submitted papers at the Conventions: E. G. Godfrey, C. O. Eddy and W. C. Nettles, C. L. Morgan, J. T. McAlister, H. P. Cooper, F. S. Andrews, A. E. Schilleter, R. A. McGinty, and W. C. Barnes.

WRIGHT ADDRESSES STUDENT ENGINEERS

National President of A. S. M.
E. Observes Clemson's Engineering School

On Wednesday, February 4, the students of the Engineering school enjoyed a talk by Roy V. Wright, National President of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. Mr. Wright is on a general tour of the country, visiting all units of the A. S. M. E. and making contacts with engineers.

In his talk in chapel, Mr. Wright stressed the importance of an engineer being able to write well and to express himself concisely and freely before an audience. Not only the salesmen but the research engineers must also be able to talk in public in order to help their company sell the output. Mr. Wright gave several personal examples to illustrate his points.

During the afternoon Professor S. B. Earle, Head of the Engineering Department, directed Mr. Wright through the engineering buildings. At the end of his visit, the president of the A. S. M. E. made this comment. "Clemson has one of the best engineering schools in the South." He also congratulated the Clemson students upon the amount of English they receive in their engineering courses. "Too many mechanical engineers do not have the knowledge

LEO, THE M. G. M. LION, VISITS CLEMSON

The Famous Metro-Goldwin-
Mayer Master of Movie
Ceremonies Stops in Tiger's
Lair on His World Tour

"Grr-r-r-r-r", (and similar roars resembling thunder).

The monologue came from none other than Leo, the famous movie lion that introduces all Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer pictures. Last Thursday afternoon Leo was not introducing any of his illustrious co-stars, but was presenting little Leo himself (I say "little" because we all like to think of ourselves as small when we are the only one of our kind present in a gathering.)

It wasn't until Leo's trainer had given an account of the famous lion's 15 years of life, from capture to his present state of affairs, that Leo deemed it appropriate to stand and greet his audience (such modesty, tsk!).

Leo, the world's largest living king of beasts, has about as many peculiarities in taste as some of the other movie stars, (it must be the environment.) He consumes thirty pounds of meat every day, and if he has his say as to the kind of meat it will be, he calls for a nice juicy meal of horse, mutton, or human prepared a-la-co-ed. Especial attention is called to his last preference, since he will probably be carried to some co-ed schools to tell of his illustrious self.

From all indications, Leo had just had his repast of horse flesh, or was in the middle stages of sleeping sickness, (which could probably be attributed to his being in a collegiate environment,) because it was with much concern that he moved.

When the trainer entered the cage, Leo, rather unwillingly, stood and stretched his 750-pound body, much to the delight of those cadets who had tried in vain to arouse him by banging on his cage. Leo performed a number of tricks, but evidently became disgusted and bit the trainer's whip in two.

From the remarks that filled the atmosphere, everyone enjoyed having the famous Leo present. Numerous cadets, especially those in a nearby tree, requested that Leo be turned out that he might be seen to better advantage. In reply came the remark that such a condition would bring about a violation of the quarantine, since certain cadets would not stop to look back until they had reached Seneca.

Leo is now on a world tour that will require seven years for completion.

The famous lion was brought to Clemson under the auspices of the local Y. M. C. A.

of English to enable them to make full drawings and reports," he said.

Mr. Wright has been connected with the railway mechanical industry for thirty-two years. His headquarters are in New York City, where he is managing editor of Railway Age. His home is in East Orange, N. J. He came to Clemson from Atlanta by aeroplane, as he missed his train and did not want to break his appointment with the Clemson students.

CONDITION OF CADET SANDERS IS IMPROVED

Strong Hope for His Recovery Prevails; Student Body and Campus People Still Under Quarantine

Reports from the Clemson College Hospital are that the condition of Cadet William Sanders, who developed a case of cerebro-spinal meningitis last Wednesday, has been steadily improving for the past several days and that strong hopes for his recovery are now held. As yet no other case of the disease has developed within the student body, one case on the campus having resulted in the death of the young stepson of Professor Holmes of the college faculty.

As a precaution against the dread disease, the student body and the people of the campus are still under the rigid quarantine that has been enforced here for seven days. In complying with the conditions advocated by the State Board of Health, the college authorities have suspended all large assemblies of students, cancelled all athletic contests until after the quarantine, and passed rules that will prevent any close contact of individuals with others. At all gatherings, the individuals are required to sit at intervals of one vacant seat. Students are forbidden to enter any automobile or any other public or private home on the campus.

These restrictions, according to health authorities are not indicative of any serious health situation here but are merely steps of precaution against any spread of disease at this institution.

EVIDENCE THAT YOU CAN'T BEAT THE ARMY

James X and Bill Z, Well Known Cadets, Have Unfortunate Experience

Because of the fact that the river bank was not crowded and that the chapel was likely to be, James X and Bill Z decided that they would prefer this less congested area to the germ befuddled air of the auditorium.

Alls well that ends well but we are told that this had a sad conclusion.

"Boy, that river air sure was enervating, wasn't it?" vouchsafed James.

"Yes," was the reply, "I bet I can eat anything we get today." These and various other remarks about the state of their health flitted through their minds as they strolled leisurely up behind barracks—and as they thought to a hearty dinner. Their emotions were short lived.

Upon arriving at the guard room Bill swore lustily and remarked, "Lets go down to Monteiths."

"Why?" answered James, who had not noticed the bulletin board.

"Look, Dinner at twelve-thirty. Chapel for Engineers immediately afterwards."

"That lets us out; we aren't Engineers," was the crestfallen reply.

"You are right; we are just a couple of fish."

THE NEW STAFF

In accordance with the custom of passing the administration of The Tiger into the hands of the Junior Staff at or near the close of the first semester, which custom was established here several years ago, on the front page of this issue we publish a list of the men, who have been selected to direct the publication of this official weekly along with the respective capacities in which they will act. This new staff, which is composed entirely of men who have had at least one year of experience in writing for this paper, will take actual charge of The Tiger immediately after the appearance of this issue, the present senior members remaining only as available advisors.

Our successors are entering upon a task that is extremely difficult; for, in this institution as well as in all schools of this type, the journalistic interests and tendencies of the students are indeed negligible. However, despite this fact, fault-finders are numerous, and destructive criticism is frequent and severe. For a small group to be representative of such a large and cosmopolitan student body in its opinions and selection of news items is a near impossibility which confronts the staffs of all college publications.

With the prevalence of these difficulties indelibly impressed upon us by our own experience, our selection of our successors came only after thorough consideration of the representativeness and integrity of each available student as well as his journalistic ability.

A SWAN SONG

It is an old and established precedent for every retiring administration, no matter how high nor how low its position, to deliver, just before passing, an elaborate narration of the accomplishments that have been concurrent with and the result of its existence. We beg the liberty of transgressing these long existent laws and traditions for reasons the enumeration of which would be grossly superfluous.

In asking pardon for our many faults and mistakes, we wish to say that our every effort has been to publish a newspaper as representative of the college and student body of which it is a part as our limited talents and facilities would permit. To the new staff, we extend our sincerest wish for unlimited success.

FRESHMAN COUNCIL

On Thursday evening, Feb. 15, the Freshman council met in the club room of the "Y" with Mr. Roy Cooper as the speaker of the evening. The meeting was opened with a short devotional. Then the group at large discussed the policy to be used for limiting the number of new members. Mr. Roy Cooper gave a very interesting and enjoyable talk on "The Duties of an Active and Associate Member of the 'Y'." He gave many new ideas and thoughts that should enable the active student to promote his phase of work. Items of business were presented for the discussion and approval of the council. Then the meeting was closed by a word of prayer.

SUNDAY SERVICE

The Cabinet and Senior "Y" council journeyed into the woods to find a quiet spot to hold a short devotional and discussion Sunday morning at eleven o'clock. When the group decided to hold the meeting a beautiful spot among the whispering pines was selected. Gathered in a small circle on the banks of the river the group enjoyed a short devotional led by G. A. Black. Cadet Black spoke on "Friendship". After much discussion on various topics, the meeting was dismissed with a word of prayer, and the group returned to barracks.

JUNIOR COUNCIL

The Junior Council held its regular meeting in the club room of the "Y" last Tuesday evening at seven o'clock. The meeting was opened with a devotion led by Cadet D. M. Cox. After this several members took part in sentence prayers. The meeting was then turned into a short business session, and the following men were accepted as members of the Council: J. A. McLeod, J. A. Weston, H. L. Wyant, and B. D. Cloaniger. Several other items of interest were discussed. Plans for the Spring Retreat at Blue Ridge, were made and the first week-end in May set as the tentative date for the retreat.

The council was then favored with a very interesting talk by Rev. Goode. Using the Beatitudes as the scripture, Mr. Goode gave several new ideas on "The Ethics of Christ". The council greatly enjoyed the talk. Mr. Goode dismissed the meeting with a short prayer.

BANQUET ENJOYED

In honor of Dr. Dag Folger, a graduate of Yale and formerly a Clemson cadet, a banquet was held in the cafe of the "Y" Saturday evening at eight o'clock.

All leaders of evening watch, with members of all the councils and the Cabinet attended the hour of discussion and refreshments. Mr. Folger was introduced to the group by Mr. P. B. Holtzendorff. After a very delightful talk, brought to the attention of the group the President's Training School at Blue Ridge, and the work of the Y. M. C. A. graduate school. Dr. F. H. H. Calhoun made a few remarks on Blue Ridge and the environments of a man. Mr. Holtzendorff told a little of Blue Ridge and the possibilities of Clemson's delegation this year. The evening was thoroughly enjoyed by the entire group.

DR. FOLGER SPEAKS

The "Y" cabinet, the councils, and the leaders of the evening watch group enjoyed a meeting with Mr. Dag Folger at the club room of the "Y" just after supper on Saturday evening. Mr. Folger is a Clemson graduate and is now engaged at the Y. M. C. A. Graduate School in Nashville, Tennessee.

He spoke on the subject of creating thought through the council work and told briefly of some of his experiences at Clemson. The meeting was adjourned at the close of Mr. Folger's talk.

DISCUSSION GROUPS

After an informal meeting of the faculty and student leaders of the discussion groups in the cafe of the Y Thursday evening from seven to eight, there will be a meeting held on each company hall for a period of one hour. The subjects for discussion are:

1. Etiquette and Ethics (The approval methods of meeting people and taking part in social life.)
2. Cheating and Methods of Prevention.
3. Sex Problems.
4. Comparative Religions.
5. Friendship and Duty to Classmates.
6. Better Relationship with Instructors.

tors.

Two members of the faculty are to discuss each subject. One will discuss his topic with six companies, and the other chosen for the same topic will discuss it with the remaining six. The instructors chosen for the six topics, respectively, are: Lt. O. R. Johnston and Prof. H. Rankin, Prof. F. M. Kinard, and Prof. S. M. Martin, Dr. L. W. Milford and Rev. C. Satterlee, Rev. S. J. L. Crouch and Rev. J. O. Smith, Prof. W. W. Burton and Dr.

H. M. Brown, Prof. J. E. Hunter and Prof. W. W. Klugh. There will be one assistant on each company. The following students are the assistants: B. D. Cloaniger, N. B. Glenn, R. O. Chapman, N. C. Parks, H. C. Woodson, D. M. Cox, L. E. Wiggins, S. G. Seabrook, D. H. Kennemur, J. C. Williamson, W. H. Padgett, B. M. Vaughan, and O. E. Pritcher. Hugh McLaurin, chairman of the bible study group, is sponsoring these discussion groups through the Y. M. C. A.

SPORTS Quarantine Forces Teams To Remain Idle SPORTS

Up until a very recent time, last year to be more exact, the sports public considered coaching ability as the primary prerequisite of a good coach. A good coach then had to develop teams that were rarely licked more than twice a season. With few exceptions such an attitude upon the part of the public has been sustained until a short time ago.

Today, with all the reports of various findings upon the existing conditions of intercollegiate athletics being published day after day, a definite change has taken place as to what actually is a good coach. Naturally, ability is an important factor in a coach's make-up. However, this ability must necessarily be a means toward an end. A good coach to measure well up in present day standards must be a man of good character and attractive personality in the truest sense of the words. All this does not mean that coaches back in the early 1900's were not men. It just means that now, more than then, the influence of a college coach as a man has a more recognized effect over college men than formerly. A good coach is to be desired, but unless, along with this capability, a high type of manhood is apparent, such a coach will never loom very large on any sport's horizon.

When the athletic council started to select a coach to take the place of Coach Cody, they had to sift and eliminate the numerous applicants with the above idea in mind. A good coach was needed to carry on Coach Cody's work. Also, the lasting effect upon the cadets of Coach Cody as a man had to be considered as being of prime importance. And we, speaking for the cadet corps as a whole, feel that probably the only man who fulfills all these requirements to the proverbial "9th degree" is Coach Jess Neely. Probably Coach Neely does not realize that his selection has the unanimous approval of the cadets. Since he has been here his choice as head coach has aroused a great deal of enthusiasm among the cadets. They understand the task confronting him, and have even voiced the belief that half his hard work is over—that of obtaining the favor of those of whom he has become a part. Meeting him and seeing him work with the football candidates these last few days has attracted all the cadets to his personality. They are all "strong" for the Tigers' new mentor. Coach Neely, believing in you, we accept you; and accepting you, we back you to the last inch.

DEARTH OF SPORTS

This quarantine business has played havoc not only with the social life of the college, but has also completely shoved all athletic competition into a distant future. Steps are being taken to begin playing on schedule as soon as possible. Just when that will be nobody seems to know.

ACT FINEM

Well with this issue the old regime steps down to let in the new. This new staff will carry on as always. For a while the sports program will be practically nihil due to the strict state quarantine. After that is removed, however, things will hum as usual. This column will be under a new head with all of a new head's enthusiastic ideas. So—"bon soir."

CLUBS AND SOCIETIES

Palmetto Literary Society

The Palmetto Literary Society meeting held Thursday evening, February 5, consisted of a short program followed by an election of officers for next term. The Latham Brothers rendered some delightful music, which was followed with some very amusing jokes by E. L. Hartley. O. H. Green then read several poems.

F. W. Cannon, president during the last term, then gave a short talk in retiring, and turned the chair over to C. W. Kitchens, who was elected some time ago as third term president. An election of officers for the next term then followed. The results of the election are as follows: L. O. Clayton, vice president; B. D. Cloaninger, recording secretary; O. H. Green, corresponding secretary; J. E. Webb, treasurer; J. R. Wood, prosecuting critic; F. A. Burns, reporting critic; F. W. Cannon, literary critic; B. M. Latham, sergeant-at-arms.

A program committee consisting of O. H. Green, O. C. Lewis, and H. W. Fogle was appointed.

The newly elected officers were then installed, and the society adjourned by order of the president.

ALPHA ZETA

Alpha Zeta held its first regular meeting since the holidays Monday night February 2. Roy Cooper attended the meeting and gave an interesting talk, in which he described the work being carried on at the Tuskegee Institute for negroes in Alabama.

A short business meeting followed, after which the meeting was adjourned.

COLLEGE 4-H CLUB

The College 4-H Club held its regular meeting Friday evening February 6. Scholarships were discussed, and the Membership committee recommended J. W. Talbert for membership.

At the conclusion of the business session Professor Godfrey gave an interesting lecture on astronomy.

MARCHING with modern industry to World-Power

In the great new power plant that serves the city of Buenos Aires, Crane valves and fittings are found in use. In the paper mills of Ontario and the water power developments of Niagara Falls, engineers swear by them. Camels carry them into the depths of the Abyssinian Desert and dog sledges into the wilds of Canada.

The quality of Crane piping materials has won them a world-wide demand. The globe-girdling Crane distributing organization has placed them within easy reach of power and industrial builders everywhere.

Naturally, this distributing organization is most complete and efficient in the United States. In this country are factories in five cities manufacturing industrial piping materials; branches and sales offices in 160 cities; warehouses in close proximity to every important industrial center. All these facilities are keyed to receive orders for quickly needed materials and have them on the spot with no loss of time.

No matter where you take up your career after you leave school, you will find need for piping materials from the complete Crane line, and a Crane office nearby to make it easy for you to get them.
